

iShares U.S. Real Estate ETF

1-Year Term with Participation Rate

Index Summit 6® Variable-Indexed Annuity Strategy Analysis

Consider diversifying with the iShares U.S. Real Estate 1-Year Term with Participation Rate Indexed Strategy

Allocating money to an iShares U.S. Real Estate 1-year Term with Participation Rate strategy provides the opportunity for clients to diversify their portfolios with exposure to upside in the real estate sector with limited downside risk.

Returns using rolling periods

Using one-year rolling returns from December 31, 2001 through December 31, 2018, you can see how an iShares U.S. Real Estate 1-year Term with Participation Rate strategy with a 95% upside participation rate would have performed compared to an S&P 500® 1-year Term with Participation Rate strategy with a 75% upside participation rate. Both strategies offered a 50% downside participation rate each term. The following strategy analysis includes 4,029 observations.

	S&P 500 1-year Term with Participation Rate Strategy with 75% Upside Participation Rate		iShares U.S. Real Estate 1-year Term with Participation Rate Strategy with 95% Upside Participation Rate
Maximum Return	51.43%	Maximum Return	110.44%

Maximum and average rolling returns are reflective of the data that was available to us when this filer was created. Returns for last 10 years assume that, for the entire 10-year period, clients held a Great American Life® variable-indexed annuity, allocated 100% of their funds to applicable strategy for each one-year term and terms coincided with calendar years. Strategy returns are based on changes in the index over one-year terms, which are not based on calendar years but begin on the 6th and 20th of a month. The information presented above reflects hypothetical upside participation rates, which are not guaranteed. The actual upside participation rates that we might have applied during this period would have been different and might have been significantly lower. This example assumes no withdrawals are taken from the annuity. Early withdrawal charges will apply if money is withdrawn during the early withdrawal charge period. Any withdrawal will reduce contract values. In addition, a withdrawal before the end of a term may have a positive or negative impact on the strategy value at the end of the term, which may be significant.

It pays to keep things simple.®
